BERG WAS THE VICTIM

Conviction of the Violator Was Certain—For a Short Time.

Deputy Game Warden Oberholtzer's veracity has never yet been doubted when he springs a story upon the crowd which congregates about him when he happens to have a little leisure time upon his hands, knowing that he is ripe for a rich "butt" on some of his colleagues, and that it is the genuine article it is always accepted as such. Mr. Oberholtzer's latest "gem" is upon Martin Berg, deputy warden who hails from Rhinelander and is more or less familiar to Eagle Riverites. Here it is:

Sitting in front of the Mnuequa House one day last week were Oberholtzer, Berg and two other "Indians." A stranger appears and appropriates a vacant spot on the bench beside Berg. The conversation is something like this: "Gentlemen," said the stranger, "I am the happiest man in existence today and I'll tell you why. I was driving out in the country this morning early. Saw a magnificent buck and with one well-placed shot I downed him. It's the first deer I've seen outside of a park, and I never shall forget how splendidly he looked to me. I shall have his head mounted and the hide made into a rug for my 'den' at home. My guides are bringing him in town now." Berg took a fresh litch upon the bench seat and asked: "Mister you probably do not know who you are now addressing," to which the stranger replied he did not. "Well," said Berg throwing out his chest, "I am a game warden of the great state of Wisconsin and it will be my duty to place you under arrest."

The stranger arose and facing Berg replied: "I did not know you were a game warden, and I am of the opinion that you are not aware who I am." Berg admitted he had had no introduction and innocently inquired who he (the important personage who slew the deer) might be. The stranger before replying settled his hat a trifle more firmly upon his head and said: "Mr. Game Warden to further enlighten you as to the exalted title I bear, I will say that I have the honor of being the district attorney of this side of the Missouri."

PLUMBING BUSINESS SOLD.

A deal has been consummated whereby the plumbing business of the Innes Estate has become the property of A. L. Dunn. The Innes Plumbing establishment is well known in our city. For years it was the only one and has always enjoyed a large patronage. Since the death of Thomas Innes two years ago, Henry Morrill and Frank Innes, a brother of Thomas Innes, have been administrators and Frank Innes has had active charge of the plumbing work. There is a great need of two plumbing establishments in our city and if there were to be a change, Mr. Dunn would be most satisfactory to a large number of citizens. He has been a resident of Rhinelander for many years and has been most active as one of the owners of a large business, the Dunn & Wood Hardware Store. With Mr. Dunn at the head of the plumbing firm there is no question about its continued success.

For the present, the men who are with the Innes firm will remain in the employ of Mr. Dunn. Rhinelander is large enough to support two first-class plumbing establishments.

NO SECRET MARRIAGES.

After October 1, it will be impossible to go out of the state to be married and return, hoping to keep the matter secret; because of the provision of a law passed at the last session of the legislature you must file notice of such event within 10 days after it occurs with the local register. The law says:

"When parties living in this state shall return to it to reside, they shall obtain from the county clerk of the county in which either of them resided prior to the marriage, a blank certificate of marriage which they shall cause to be properly filled out and filed with the local register of vital statistics of the city, incorporated village or town wherein they reside, within ten days after their return."

GALA WEEK AT STEVENS POINT

Great Crowd Expected to See the Fair and Enjoy the Races.

Next week will be fair week at Stevens Point, and a great crowd is expected to attend the fair and see the races. The list of exhibits in the stock, dairy, poultry, agricultural, garden, manufacturing and domestic departments will exceed all previous efforts and the award of purses aggregating $3500 has insured a race program unsurpassed in Central Wisconsin. A fine line of slide entertainments has also been booked. One of the show features on the race program will be Walter Wilmut's great exhibit of relay riders from Minneapolis. Premium lists, race programs, etc., may be secured from G. L. Park, secretary, Stevens Point, Wis.

OLD RESIDENTS LEAVE CITY.

The family of H. Lewis left the city Monday morning for their new home at Kansas City, Missouri. Mr. Lewis has had heart trouble the past few years and has visited many places to learn if possible what location would be best for his health and his business interests. At one time he thought of moving to Los Angeles but finally settled upon Kansas City. Mr. Lewis has been a prominent business man in the City of Rhinelander for many years. He has owned much real estate but since his contemplated change he has sold a great part of it. J. J. Reardon purchased his brick store some time ago and City Attorney Steele purchased his home recently.

In Mr. Lewis' moving, Rhinelander loses a man who has been active in the building up of this city. The family leaves behind a wide circle of friends.

Find Watered Stock.

Evidence, sensation in the extreme, that the stock of the Appleton Water Works company is badly watered, that the officers of the company know little or nothing about the issuing of the stock of 200,000 shares and $250,000 bonds, and that the company is violating the state law which provides that commercial companies must have their stock books in the state, was brought out this morning when J. Austin Hawes, secretary, and J. H. Hayes, engineer and former president of the company were examined by Attorney George G. Green of Green Bay for the city of Appleton under its discovery statutes.

DANCING PARTY A DECIDED SUCCESS.

The dancing party given by the Calumet Four, Tuesday evening was a decided success in every way. The hall was beautifully decorated in red and white and the Calumet colors. The doorways were arched with evergreens and the orchestra was screened off from the rest of the hall by a beautiful lattice work effect. The floors were fine and the Military Orchestra furnished excellent music. The dancers were in the finest of spirit and report a most enjoyable evening.

NEW ELECTRICAL SUPPLY HOUSE.

James Garland who has been with the Electric Lighting Company the past five years announces that he is to start an electrical supply house and keep in stock all supplies including lamps, wire batteries, chandeliers shades, flatirons, and all general lines of an electrical supply house. He expects that his stock will arrive next week so that he will be ready for electrical work.

Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by One Dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

I was so weak from an attack of diarrhoea that I did not attend my duties when I took a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It cured me and I had been taking other medicine for nine days with out relief. I heartily recommend this remedy as being the best to my knowledge for bowel complaints.—It. O. Stewart, of the firm of Stuart & Bro., Greenville, Ala. For sale by Blum and Co.

THE CHAUTAUQUA CLOSES.

The people of Rhinelander failed to grasp the educational value and general merits of the Chautauqua Assembly which closed its session here on Sunday evening.

The programs from first to last were of a very high order and deserved the most liberal support. Mrs. Lillian Phelps lecture on "The Eternal City" (Rome) was a treat not often to be enjoyed in our city and in word pictures, resplendent with historic and poetic language she carried her audience to Rome both ancient and modern.

About 200 people—a union service—gathered at the Congregational Church on Sunday evening to hear the address of Mr. Charles Olive Merica on the subject "The Peoples' Pat." At the close of the service Mr. Merica spoke of the fact that the "Chautauqua" had run behind over one hundred dollars and made an urgent appeal for an offering to help in clearing this deficit. A collection amounting to over $31.00 was taken.

A STORMY SEPTEMBER.

I. H. Hicks says of the weather for the coming September in part as follows:

"A regular storm period covers the first week in September, being central on the 4th, and storms of much energy will sweep progressively over the country from the 4th to 7th. The culmination will come on and touching 7th.

A reactionary storm period comes close after the crisis of the first period. It is central on the 9th, 10th and 11th. Heavy storms of rain, hail, wind and thunder will move out of the northwest, followed by change to cooler with probable frosts.

A regular storm period the 14th to 19th, is one of great and almost certain severity. It is at the crisis of the autumnal equinox. Hurricanes and cyclonic storms should be anticipated about the southern coasts.

A reactionary storm period which is central on the 20th, 21st and 22nd. Many volcanic and seismic convulsions will also be reported within forty-eight hours of sunset on the 21st. The boreal change will be approximately between the 21st and 25th. All the lake regions especially should beware of these storms.

A regular storm period covers the closing week of September. It is central on the 27th and culminating days fall on Friday the 27th to Sunday the 30th. This period will bring its change to warmer. The chances are that September will be disturbed, if not phenomenally stormy and out of joint, to the last. The astronomic outlook for this month strongly points to such results.

Let every one who has a telescope keep a daily watch over the sun spots. See if they do not reach fearful proportions from August to October."

WATER WORKS MATTER UP BEFORE KRUGMEIER TOMORROW.

"You are required to have with you and then and there produce all books and records of the Appleton Water Works, The New England Water Works Company and the Appleton Water Works Company, in your possession and control, showing the issue of all stock and bonds by said corporations, the amounts received for the same and how they were disbursed."

The above summons was issued late Saturday afternoon by Court Commissioner A. H. Krugmeier, to J. A. Hawes and J. H. Hayes, who are to appear before him tomorrow morning under the discovery statutes to answer questions pertaining to the suit of the Appleton Water Works Co., against the city of Appleton which is now pending in the Winnebago county circuit court.

The summons was issued on application of George G. Greene, of Green Bay, attorney for the city in the water works matter and was served this morning.—Appleton Press.

PURCHASES NEW-MILLINER STOCK

Mrs. C. J. O'Brien of this city returned from Chicago the last of the week where she went to secure her new millinery stock for fall sales. Miss Mayme Aanstad, her trimmer returned with her. Miss Mayme Doner of Milwaukee and Miss Fredrica Wenzel also returned. Mrs. O'Brien purchased a large stock and is getting ready for her fall opening.

THE PLACE TO GO.

Does your wife love amusement? Then send her out for an evening, or what is the matter with you, escorting her to see that funny comedy, "The Irish Pawnbrokers?" You will enjoy it, and it will remove that tired look from her face. You will both be the better for it.

END STRAW HAT SEASON.

Give Your Lid to the Janitor, He May Wear It.

Lay it away in the attic. Or, if you bought it early in the summer when the frost was still upon the ground, the chances are it has outlived its usefulness.

At any rate it is no longer proper to be seen on the streets with that kind of a lid. So doff it.

Another good use you can make of it is to give it to the janitor. Invite him out upon the back porch and tell him what a fine janitor he has been all summer, how he has tried to keep it so comfortable and all that.

Do not say anything about next winter when you will want steam in your flat. It will not be necessary. Just give him your straw hat and he will remember you.

The straw hat season is now definitely closed. Any one who ventures out in this regard should complete his outfit with a highly polished celluloid collar and a pale pink necktie with hand painted embroidery. "The hat-ters have taken in their signs." "Any hat in the window, 50 cents"—and substituted other alluring placards calculated to tempt the masculine eye. Evening Wisconsin.

DEATHS.

The funeral of Ed. Froelberg of Hackley occurred Monday after an illness of many weeks. It will be remembered that he was shot by an Indian at Hackley and was brought to St. Mary's Hospital where he remained till his death. The Indian claimed to have mistaken him for a deer but evidence seemed to indicate that the shooting was intentional. At any rate, the Indian has not been seen since.

John Kruse of North Crandon died Tuesday at St. Mary's Hospital, where he has been for five weeks since he fell off a bridge at North Crandon into a pile of stone, twenty feet below. The remains were shipped by F. A. Hildebrand to North Crandon for burial.

Frank Sawyer of Morris died in the County Jail the first of the week, cause, alcoholism.

MME. QUI VIVE BACK FROM PARIS.

Mme. Qui Vive, who writes entertainingly and chatily on beauty and other feminine topics in the Chicago Record Herald, has recently returned from Paris, where she went to study beauty as the French see it. It is safe to say that it will take her a year to give her readers all the new ideas she gathered abroad. Feminine readers will be glad to learn that these are to appear from time to time in her well known department, "The Woman Beautiful". In the Chicago Record Herald. The immense popularity of Mme. Qui Vive's articles is largely due to the fact that her advice is of real value to women and is given in a delightfully original style. Even mere men are known to read with secret chuckle the piquant epigrams with which she heads her column every morning. Her wholesomeness and remarkable versatility have made her an eagerly looked for visitor in thousands of American homes.

The unique Sunday Magazine of the Record-Herald in text, illustrations, paper and presswork is a rival of the best independent periodicals. It has the real magazine quality.

THE BEST EVER.

The company which will present the best of all Irish farce comedies, "The Irish Pawnbrokers", at the Opera House in the near future, has a really wonderful array of well known people enlisted in the ranks of the organization. The management do not believe in the too common system of "one or two giving the whole show", but have organized what is undoubtedly one of the strongest farce comedy casts ever brought together.

REVIVAL IN BIRKHART'S SCHOOL

The very successful services which the Rev. Thomas W. Gales has been holding on Sunday afternoons during the summer in the Birkhart school house are to be brought to a head next week when he will hold a series of revival meetings commencing Sunday afternoon and running from Monday until Saturday evenings at eight o'clock. Mr. Gales has arranged to take a load of interested workers from Rhinelander each evening.

A humane citizen of Rhinelander, Mr. C. D. It saves more lives than all other throat and lung remedies combined. Used as a cough and cold cure the world over. Cures asthma, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, quinsy, hoarseness and phthisis, stops hemorrhages of the lungs and builds them up. Guaranteed at J. J. Beardon's drug store, 50c. and $1.00.

BLIND SOME STRANGE PERSPECTIVES SEEN

"You know what I mean," persisted the Observer. "You've seen him dozens of times—goes by here a lot. His face is so familiar, yet we can't seem to place him: Smooth face, dark eyes, maybe anywhere from 35 to 45 years of age, always faultlessly attired—"

"Oh, I know now," interrupted the Other Observer. "Doesn't he sometimes wear a light gray suit?"

"Um—yes. And usually carries an overcoat on his arm."

"And a pink in his buttonhole?"

"That's the man!" declared the Observer, triumphantly.

"I thought so! Well, what about him?" eagerly.

"Nothing. That's just it. No one seems to know the first thing about him, and yet there's something mysterious about that man. Several who have noticed him say the same thing. He's a conspicuous figure and looks as of the most dignified looking men I ever saw! Now who do you suppose he can be?"

"Oh, goodness! Quick, quick! This looks like him coming now. It is!" cried the Observer excitedly. "He's been two weeks since we've had a glimpse of him."

"Yes, it's the same man," agreed the Other Observer. "Doesn't he look swell to-day?"

"I can tell him a mile off by his walk—sort of a swinging stride. He has a 'swell,' eh?" the Observer.

"He must be on his way somewhere. I wonder where? It can't be a luncheon engagement. It's too late. What a peculiarly shaped pocket he has in his hand! He always is carrying something. The other day he had a large parcel that he carried gingerly as if it was something breakable or

Familiar Sound Cause of Young Man's Bad Break.

John C. Risley of Detroit, at the New York convention of the International Society of Hotel and Restaurant Employees—a convention notable for its condemnation of the tipping system—said to a reporter:

"The public thinks that we waiters get rich off our tips. The public is very ignorant in this matter. When I think of its dense ignorance I am reminded of a political meeting I attended last April. There was a chap at this meeting who knew nothing of parliamentary procedure and, besides that, he was half full. Well, in the course of the meeting there was a lot of excitement and shouting. It grew worse and worse. The chairman, in the end, had to hammer on the table and yell:

"Order! Order!"

"Dear for me," said the ignorant young man."

FOR SELFISH ENDS.

The Efforts Being Made by the American Medical Association.

The Political activity of the American Medical Association has become so pronounced as to cause comment in political circles especially as the avowed purpose of the Doctors of the "Regular" or Allopathic school, of which the Association is chiefly composed, is to secure the passage of such laws as will not only prevent the sale of so-called "Patent" medicines, but will restrict the practice of medicine and healing to the "schools" now recognized. This in many states would prevent the growing practice of Osteopathy, and in nearly every state would prevent the healers of the Christian Science and mental science beliefs from practicing those sciences in which the faith of so many intelligent people is so firmly rooted.

The American Medical Association has a "Committee on Legislation," and the committee has correspondents in practically every township—some 16,000 correspondents in all. This committee at the last session of the American Medical Association held in June of this year expressed a hope that a larger number of physicians than heretofore will offer themselves as candidates for Congress at the first opportunity. In its annual report this committee said: "To meet the growing demands of the movement, however, particularly if the work of active participation in State legislation is undertaken, a larger clerical force must be employed."

This is almost the first time in the history of the United States that any organized class has frankly avowed the purpose of capturing legislatures and dominating legislation in their own selfish interests.

The American Medical Association has about 65,000 members of whom 27,000 are "fully constituted members" and the rest are members because of their affiliation with state or local societies. The Association owns real estate in Chicago valued at $111,781.91 and its total assets are $291,667.89. Its liabilities, at the time of the annual report which was made, at the same meeting, amounted to only $21,006.72. The excess of assets over liabilities is increasing at the rate of about $20,000 a year, and the purpose of the organization is to dominate the field of medicine, and by crushing all competitors by securing the passage of prohibitive legislation, compel all of the people of the United States to pay a doctor's fee every time the most simple remedy is needed.

Deaths from X-Rays.

The death of Dr. Weigel, a surgeon of Rochester, from a disease due to the constant use of the X-rays makes the fourth who has lost his life from this cause, says the Christian Advocate.

The others were an assistant of Thomas Edison, a Boston physician and a woman of San Francisco named Fleischman. In the case of Dr. Weigel since 1904, when his right hand and all but the thumb and a finger of the left hand were removed, there had been four operations in trying to save his life. The first removed a part of the right shoulder; then a part of the muscles covering the right breast.

Mystery completely envelops the cause of death, the disease being unknown to medical science, though it is believed to involve some great principle of life. Dr. Weigel was president of the Rochester Academy of Medicine and the American Orthopaedic society.

Punctured His Eloquence.

A lawyer at Johnstown, N. Y., while defending a little boy who had been apprehended in the act of making a surreptitious entrance under the fair grounds fence, drew for the jury a most pathetic picture of the prisoner, "poor old widowed mother with the tears streaming down her face and her gray head bowed in sorrow at the thought of her little boy being incarcerated." The youthful offender cut in at this point with "Please, sir, Mr. Lawyer, my mother ain't a widow." "Shut up, darn you," said the lawyer. "I'm trying this case, not you."—Law Notes.

Horrible Example.

"My dear," said Mrs. Strongmind, "I want you to accompany me to the town hall to-morrow evening."

"What for?" queried the meek and lowly other half of the combine.

"I am to lecture on the 'Dark Side of Married Life,'" explained Mrs. S., "and I want you to sit on the platform and pose as one of the illustrations."

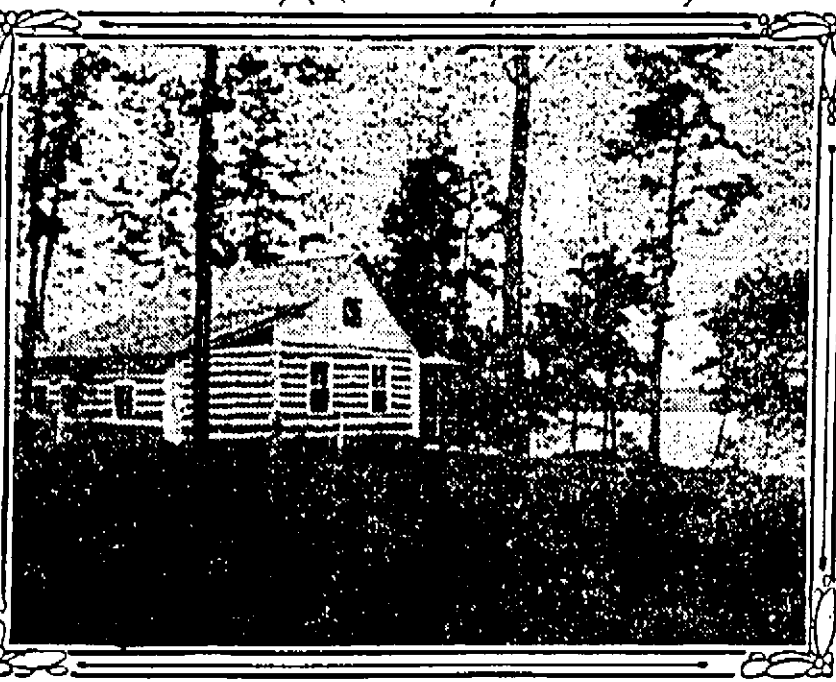

Group of St. Mary's Churches. There are in London a round dozen churches named after St. Mary, nearly all of them belonging to a single group closely packed together, showing that they all came from the one great parish of Aldermary.

The WOMAN HOMESTEADER

A LOG-CABIN HOME.

The woman homesteader is a feature of our modern pioneer life of no particular novelty. We have heard of her several years back, encamped in sodhouse out in Dakota, holding down a claim in Oklahoma; and it would seem there were no new word to say of her. My apology for the word, is that the homestead land of which I write is rather different from homestead territory commonly known, my women homesteaders, amid more picturesque surroundings than the average.

The homestead land of which I would speak, is located on the Allegheny side of the Mississippi river; in the north rather than west, in the pine woods of northern Wisconsin. The reason the land has but lately been "taken up," that it is a jack-pine region; a region which until recently was considered worthless, in the past timber and sold held of no value. But the country's fast increasing population, fast decreasing timber, the reclaiming the country over of various sorts of supposedly barren regions, these all combined have led to the homesteading of the long unclaimed public lands have brought the settler into the forest.

And among the first settlers to come is the woman homesteader, every here and there in this locality you come upon her unmistakable cabin—neat, trim, thrifty-looking, a contrast to the native's.

Forest-homesteading, you will agree with me, has more chances for picturesque than homesteading in dreary, treeless land. Here we have beauty of landscape; the woods about in interesting wild life and furnish sport for those with sportsman instinct, game for the table. Until recently this was a sportsman land pure and simple, and the holidays spirit is not yet utterly routed, the farming of us north-wooders is tempered by play; we have put our hand to the plow but now and then we go a-fishing and a-hunting.

Come to our log cabins when you will, you shall find fare that shall tempt you to stay, fare possible only in such a combination—sportsman—and rural locality. Our cultivated fields, these fields intruding on the forest, are near trout stream and spring-fed lakelets; farm labor gives us the fine big north-country potatoes, fisherman's luck provides brook trout, rainbow trout and black bass. About the time we put our potatoes in the root cellar, venison is to be had.

Only the uninformed would speak of our northland as a cold, barren region. It appears to us a land of plenty, a land of natural plenty. To be sure we are planting small fruits of various sorts, enjoy our garden currants, gooseberries, and strawberries; but if we should neither toll nor spin, the land would yield us a goodly fruit crop. In early summer everywhere about shines the inviting red of the wild strawberries; in midsummer bushes of blueberries are to be had for the picking; there is the famous wild red raspberry of the north, there are wild gooseberries, blackberries, dewberries, June berries; in early autumn the swamps yield unworked learn from wild comrades. Strange as it may appear, there are men who make a living by teaching larks to sing. It might be imagined that this is much the same as painting the lily, but it is a fact that the ordinary cage lark requires a considerable amount of training before it can sing well.

The man who undertakes the education of larks has to be up long before daybreak. In the spring before the break of day, he goes out into the country, taking a great number of cage-birds with him, that they may hear the wild ones sing.

The wild lark always sings its best soon after dawn; later on in the day its song cannot compare for beauty with its earlier efforts. The birds first begin to sing as they run about the long grass, and they sing their very finest lays a little later, when they mount high into the sky. As they soar until they appear to vanish into the azure, their song becomes more and more beautiful.

The imprisoned birds came to remember every note they hear.

Women and Elevators. A man who has a faculty for statistics has made out a statement to the effect that it takes twice as long to transport women in elevators as men, because they take longer to get off and on, and he says on that account the elevator service is slower where women are carried up and down.

Moments Rightly Used. Burns wrote his most beautiful poems in his spare moments while working on a farm. Grote wrote his "History of Greece" during the odd ends of time snatched from his duty as a banker. "Moments are the golden sands of time," it rightly used.

Cause of Gray Hair. Metchnikoff, the famous bacteriologist, says the cause of grayness is the penetration into the hair of wandering cells, resembling the white blood corpuscles. These cells, assisted by other cells, the aggregation of which makes the hair, seize upon the granules of pigment and destroy them.

SENATE "THIRSTS" COST $76 A PIECE LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON.—Senators are a thirsty lot. The report of Charles G. Bennett, secretary of the United States senate, shows that during the last fiscal year that august body consumed 860 cases of mineral water, costing $4,504.70. Then there was $2,025.87 for carbonized mineral water, and $318.97 for lemons and sugar for the famous senate lemonade, making a total of $6,849.54 for drinkables, and not a drop of anything "hard," as far as the official list shows. Since there are 90 senators, the per capita consumption is about $76. It should be remembered also that while there are some senators who drink a great deal of mineral waters there are also some who drink very little, and there is much curiosity here as to who drank the most last year.

But why in the name of all that is unparliamentary did any senator need a "skirt trunk" costing $26.70? The official list of expenditures makes no explanation of this interesting item. Another peculiar item is that of "cosmetique," 47 cents, and it is thought this may have been incurred about the same time as the skirt trunk. An echo of the good old days when the senators received free transportation from the railroads and were thus enabled to pocket the 20 cents a mile allowed by the government is contained in the item "Pass cases, $9.20." There are $88 worth of feather dusters on the list, but it is promised that this will not occur again, and it is realized that more effective weapons are required in strife with the president. For sponges the senate made the modest outlay of $150.21, according to published figures.

Glove and handkerchief sets figure prominently in the report, as also do opera bags, hand bags, engagement pads, and such like.

It is easy to guess that all these articles are utilized by the senators and their families, but it is puzzling to understand why makes way with the hundreds of pounds and pounds of oats, flaxseed meal, bran meal, rock salt, etc., and they certainly do not eat axle grease, soap, rosin, tar, spool cotton, clothes cloth, pulicose soap, Georgia pine, screen hinges, brass tacks, wire head nails, monkey wrenches and paste fillers, nor is it reasonable to suppose that these senators drink mustard, liniment, petroleum, turpentine, arnica, mahogany varnish, and a lot of other stuff that is bought in wholesale lots. These probably were bought for the horses that are used to draw the senate mail wagons, and for the vehicles themselves.

ST. GAUDENS' COINS NOT CONVENIENT FOR HANDLING

NEW designs for coins which were to have been minted in Philadelphia which Augustus St. Gaudens, the distinguished sculptor, made shortly before his death, have been found suitable in their present shape for execution with the machinery in use at the mint. Hence, contrary to a current report, the government has not accepted any of them. The general approval which was expressed by the president is not conclusive in an official sense. The law requires that they shall be accepted by the secretary of the treasury and the director of the mint before being adopted.

The projection of the sculptures upon the coins is too high for convenience of handling at banks or other large business establishments. Coins cannot be well "stacked" unless one will perfectly flat and snug upon another, and this is impossible where the bas-reliefs in the middle are higher than the rim. A pile of

THE BIOLOGICAL BUREAU DEFENDS HAWKS AND OWLS

A DEFENSE of hawks and owls is entered into by the biological survey in a recent report from that bureau. It is declared that both of these families have been condemned by the farmers of the country without discrimination because some of their species are destroyers of valuable things. Mitigating circumstances are found for some otherwise harmless birds because of a lack of proper food in the country where they live.

Incidentally, tales of eagles carrying off children are declared to have little "foundation in fact," but the bald eagle, the emblem of the United States, is, nevertheless, said to be "unfortunately fond of lambs, pigs and poultry, and in the more thickly inhabited regions probably does as much damage as the golden eagle."

The golden eagle, say the experts, has been known to attack calves and colts and to have carried away from one range in the west in a single year more than 400 lambs.

The report of the survey divides the hawk and owl families into four general species as follows: Species wholly beneficial; those chiefly beneficial; those in which beneficial and harmful qualities about balance; harmful species. Some of these birds may be good citizens in one locality and extremely "undesirable citizens" in another.

A man from Alaska says his color is "pink," another says he has "burn hair and blue eyes," while still more say "Caucasian."

The Congenial Cocktail. "It is curious how the 'morning after' cocktail often draws together souls not usually kindred," said the alert bartender to a New York Sun man as he mixed a cocktail for a customer who looked as though he were as dry as a covered bridge. "A few mornings ago a citizen who is famous for both his legal and medical knowledge came in here, and it was easy to see what he wanted. He is a large, florid man, and there was that look about him that was eloquent of the night before. Just as he ranged up before the bar a tall, ghostly-looking man with a very pale face and a very black mustache which contrasted strongly with his chalklike skin took a place beside him. Nothing could be more unlikely than these two if appearances count for anything. They studied each other for a moment.

"Hi, man of the desert, slayer of the Sarcenas, wilt quaff a bowl with me?" asked the chalk-faced man.

"Hi, man of the North, I will!" was the solemn reply of the florid one. Then and there they got to be good friends, and they often came in together afterward."

No Time to Spare. They that make the best use of their time have none to spare.—German proverb.

For the large number of baldheads in the senate a remarkable quantity of preparations for the hair was used. Here are some of the entries: Hair rim, $35.25; witch hazel, $14; hair tonic, $35.57; brillantime, $11.20.

A silver inkstand for the vice president's room costing $200 has been noticed before in the public prints. Then, on the last day of the last session, when the president and his cabinet went to the capitol to help close up the senate, they ate $36.25 worth of food for luncheon. No less than $209.75 for miniature sets for the members of the senate indicates that the fair manicurists in this town are losing considerable trade. Six sewing sets at a total cost of $26.50 are on the list.

Animal Intelligence in Massachusetts. John Talbot of Rock Knolls, Mass., enjoys the distinction of having a trained hen that will jump over his clasped hands, even if held quite high from the ground. Suffered Three Years—Physicians Did No Good—Perfectly Well After Using Cuticura Remedies.

"I take great pleasure in informing you that I was a sufferer of eczema in a very bad form for the past three years. I consulted and treated with a number of physicians in Chicago, but to no avail. I commenced using the Cuticura Remedies, consisting of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, three months ago, and to-day I am perfectly well, the disease having left me entirely. I cannot recommend the Cuticura Remedies too highly to anyone suffering with the disease that I have had. Mrs. Florence E. Atwood, 18 Crilly Place, Chicago, Ill., October 2, 1905. Witness: L. S. WHAT THE WOMEN WORE.

Of Course the Story Teller Didn't Really Mean Just That.

A gentleman recently returned from that quiet little Maryland resort, Ocean City, has a tale to tell of conditions that are really sensational. And the worst of it was that he did not know they were sensational at all. He was out calling the other evening, and the conversation started with the shrill wail, man, who, the returned wanderer said, was to be found in great quantities at the summer resort. Then he told about the habit everybody down there had contracted of going without hats. This is the way he told it to an interested company:

"You see everybody down there going about just the same. The men never wear coats; they go about in just their shirts and trousers, and the women are just like them."

PUT IT IN GOOD LIGHT.

One Comforting Thought in the Death of the Chickens.

A lady who had recently moved to the suburbs was very fond of her first brood of chickens. Going out one afternoon she left the household in charge of her eight-year-old boy. Before her return a thunderstorm came up. The youngster forgot the chickens during the storm and was dismayed after it passed to find that half of them had been drowned. Though fearing the wrath to come, he thought best to make a clean breast of the calamity, rather than leave it to be discovered.

"Mamma," he said, contritely, when his mother had returned, "mamma, six of the chickens are dead."

"Dead!" cried his mother. "Six! How did they die?"

The boy saw his chance. "I think—I think they died happy," he said.—Harper's Weekly.

BAD DREAMS

Frequently Due to Coffee Drinking.

One of the common symptoms of coffee poisoning is the bad dreams that spoil what should be a restful sleep. A man who found the reason says:

"Formerly I was a slave to coffee. I was like a morphia fiend, could not sleep at night, would roll and toss in my bed and when I did get to sleep was disturbed by dreams and hiccups, and feel bad all day, so nervous I could not attend to business. My writing looked like bird tracks, I had sour belchings from the stomach, indigestion, heartburn and palpitation of the heart, constipation, irregularity of the kidneys, etc."

"Indeed, I began to feel I had all the troubles that human flesh could suffer, but when a friend advised me to leave off coffee I felt as if he had insulted me. I could not bear the idea, it had such a hold on me and I refused to believe it the cause."

"But it turned out that no advice was even given at a more needed time for I finally consented to try Postum and with the going of coffee and the coming of Postum all my troubles have gone and health has returned. I eat and sleep well now, nerves stented down and I write a fair hand (as you can see), can attend to business again and rejoice that I am free from the monster coffee."

Ten days' trial of Postum in place of coffee will bring sound, restful, refreshing sleep. "There's a Reason," Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. Some physicians call it "a little health classic."

Merchants Visit Milwaukee. Come to the city of beautiful parks, clean streets, fine buildings, huge factories, immense jobbing houses and hospitable people. Spend your time during the Annual Fall Buying Season where you can bring your families and combine business with pleasure.

The recent laws in Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri, and Michigan, which reduce the duty on woolen goods to two cents a yard, are of great advantage to merchants in this territory who wish to come to Milwaukee. After August 15, 1907, merchants may buy a regular ticket to Milwaukee at a rate of two cents a yard (the lowest rate now given for any occasion) and will not be required to secure certificates or be restricted to certain dates. This offers decided advantages to Milwaukee patrons. While in Milwaukee call for information at the Milwaukee Association of Jobbers and Manufacturers, 45-19 University Bldg.

SPEEDAPHOBIA

One of the signs of rapidly increasing prosperity of our city is the number of automobiles owned by our business and professional men and the improvements which are making our streets so desirable to motorists.

will encourage the use of this convenient and rapid means of transportation. Rapid, that is what we want to talk about today, "Speedaphobia" some people call it and it certainly is some form of madness that takes possession of the man or boy who has in his control a machine or animal capable of quick movements. The other day the sparker on one of our local machines ceased sparking as the car was half way across Stevens St., the corner of Davenport; the owner was attending to it, while a gentle man stood looking on, in front of the car and this in the middle of Stevens street, down the hill came another auto, driven at full speed within a few feet of the "sparkless" car, when some one gave a startled cry and the man standing idly watching, in the middle of the street turned just in time to be caught by the front of the car. He threw his arms up and hung there his feet dragging and before the car could be stopped he was carried about twenty or twenty-five feet. It was a remarkable escape, but does not lessen the responsibility of the one driving the auto. Almost every day some narrow escape might be recorded and it does not require a prophet to predict that one of these days human life will pay the penalty of reckless speeding.

These remarks do not apply alone to the automobile, we have the fast driving of spirited horses and the bicycle fiend, the latter frequently taking possession of our sidewalks and rushing along, regardless of the life and limbs of helpless women and children who may step out suddenly into his path. All of these are in open defiance of our laws and yet no word has reached this office of the arrest of even one of these lawbreakers.

Mayor Frawley, of Eau Claire, an attorney was in the city Tuesday looking after the interests of Hoefner and Bartlett who built the fifth ward school and have begun suit against the city for the amount which the building committee of the school board kept back as a forfeit for the delay in the completion of the building. Hoefner and Bartlett claim that the school board delayed them several times and now wishes them to pay the fine for something unavoidable on their part.

AN EXECUTION IN INDIA.

How a Sentence of Death Was Carried Out on Streets of Hyderabad.

The decision as to whether the murderer should be executed or imprisoned for life was, says the Civil and Military Gazette in describing an execution at Hyderabad of a Pathan who had shot his brother-in-law, as usual, left to the murdered man's relatives and his wife, the sister of the murderer, voted for death.

On the day for the execution there appeared in the streets a band of sweepers armed with leafy twigs, followed by a squad of the city Arab police with fixed bayonets. Then came the criminal, dressed in new white garments, with a new halter around his neck and new ropes attached to his arms. The ends of these ropes were held by policemen. The ordinary thing is for the condemned man to walk, but in this case he was so overcome that he had to be conveyed in a jukka.

On arriving at the fatal spot the murderer was made to kneel down, while the policemen handed over charge of the cords to the executioner's attendants one of whom, seizing the end of the halter stood in front of the felon, while others held the cords pinning his arms behind. The executioner, brandishing a broad, heavy sword, keen as a razor, in a suggestive fashion, and brandishing it towards his victim asked three times in a loud voice: "Who authorizes the execution?" The chief of the city police on duty thrice replied: "The Amir."

Then an attendant armed with a long needle pricked the condemned man in the back, causing him to start forward. At the same instant those holding the cords laid themselves back in opposite directions as in a tug-of-war contest, with the result that the wretch's neck was stretched; and, following the reply of the chief of police, the executioner's blade descended fair and true on the neck, severing the head completely.

Consumption in the Navy.

When a man enters the United States navy he is selected for his physical fitness as well as mental ability. For the reason and because the sea man's life is healthful there are few cases of chronic disease among them. There are particularly few cases of consumption. But the navy department has made arrangements for treating those according to the most scientific methods.

"When a 'lunger,' as the sailors call him, is discovered he is given instructions to proceed to Pensacola, Fla., where the sanitarium for consumptives is located," says Guy F. O'Donnell of the West Side, who was formerly in charge of the sanitarium. "This sanitarium is nothing more than an outdoor camp. It consists of rows of heavy canvas tents built on light wooden frames. The sides can be raised and lowered, as weather conditions permit. Here the patients are given the freedom of the camp. They live out of doors, taking long walks in the warm Southern sunshine, and at night they sleep in the open air. Milk and eggs form the principal articles of diet. Very little medicine is given."—Kansas City Star.

Grapes Grown Under Glass.

The grape of grapes for the table is grown in Belgium, and under glass. It is in no Arcadian rustic spot, but in the ideal culture flourish, but in the wide awake metropolitan suburb of Hoezlaert, near Brussels. Here there is a whole region of glass—nothing but glass over a wide vista. The spectacle is one of the shows of the country for amateurs and sightseers alike.

A good many lovers of table fruit whose interest in the subject extends no further than the dessert stand will probably be surprised to learn that it is from no native hothouse, but from Hoezlaert, that the great fruiters of London, Paris, the Riviera, Vienna, Berlin, St. Petersburg, and, mirabile dictu, even New York, receive the bulk of their winter supplies. Every Friday hundreds of chests of choice fruit, admirably packed, are despatched to the United States alone. The price at Hoezlaert is a minimum of 15 pence a pound on the vine, with fivepence added for packing. The choicest bunches are those that weigh about two pounds.

Professional Amenities.

The late James T. Maher, a well-known business man of Taunton, Mass., had the misfortune to break his leg. He was attended by Dr. Thomas Paige, who had Dr. Joseph Hayward to assist him in setting the limb.

John Gaffney, an undertaker and a personal friend of Mr. Maher's, made a contrivance for him to rest the leg on—and carried it to the Maher residence in his undertaking wagon. Dr. Hayward was there, and a few minutes later Dr. Paige came in.

"Good morning, gentlemen," he said. "I hesitated about coming in this morning. I never like to enter my patients' homes when I see an undertaker's team at the door. How is it with you, Dr. Hayward?"

"Oh," replied Dr. Hayward, "I never see an undertaker's team at my patients' doors."

Not Enough.

A case was to be tried on the charge of selling impure whiskey. The night before the case came off the defendant went round to the judge's house.

To the man at the door he said: "Here's a bottle of whiskey. I want your master to try."

"My master never tries anything but a case," he pompously replied the butler.

IN THE RUSSIAN STYLE.

Curious National Customs Observed at a South Dakota Marriage.

A double wedding in the Russian colony at Rosedale, S. D., south of Alexandria, lasted through an entire day and into the evening. The names of the principals were Joseph Mandel and Katherine Hofer, and Michael Waldner and Katherine Gross.

The ceremony was begun in the morning in the little stone church, in which the old custom of the men and women sitting on opposite sides still prevails. The Russian priest delivered a long sermon, and at 11:20 o'clock he called the principals to the front of the edifice, the women going first and being followed by the young men. The ceremony proper was spoken in Russian, and lasted but a short time. It was followed by a prayer and a song and then brides and bridegrooms returned to their separate seats.

The bridal costumes of the couples were very simple, the maidens wearing flannel-top gowns with a handkerchief tied over their heads. The bridegrooms, however, were dressed a little more fastidiously, in that they wore regular wedding suits, chief of which was a long coat. A peculiarity about the coat is that it is worn by every bridegroom in the settlement, two coats being kept in the settlement in case of a double wedding, and whether the bridegroom be tall or short, large or small, the coat must do its duty.

With the ceremony over, the guests and the bridal couples went to the eating house, where a big dinner composed of noodle soup, bread, herring, sauerkraut, whiskey and wine was served. The women occupied one long table and the men another, but the bridal couples were allowed to sit together. With the dinner over came the interesting part of the ceremony, and that is the love scene which follows a Russian wedding. The company went to what is called the love room in one of the houses, where before the assembled crowd the brides and bridegrooms sat with arms around each other, billing and cooing, oblivious to the comments and watchful eyes of the others. As a sort of break in the monotony for the brides one of the young ladies filled the aprons of the brides with peanuts and candy, which they munched with complacency as the joyous festivities proceeded. At nine o'clock the love scene broke up and the day of the wedding came to an end.

Queer Things Made From Milk.

You could build a house of milk, if you liked, and it would be as strong and lasting as though made of Aberdeen granite, says M. Glen Fling in Technical World Magazine. Moreover, all the fittings could be made of the same substance, and they would outlive the finest ordinary material that was ever constructed.

Billiard balls, combs, fancy boxes and many other things are made from the new substance, galalith, which is made from milk.

There is really no limit to the articles which can be made from galalith. It takes dyes readily and inferior grades are colored. The best remain white, however, for white galalith brings the highest price because of its similarity to ivory. The first grade of white galalith is made up in knife handles, and it brings almost as high a figure as would so much ivory.

Galalith is the best substitute for ivory ever discovered, for it is smooth to the touch, retains its soft, creamy tinting for years, is not marred by soap and water and, unlike celluloid, is proof against fire. It does not melt or crack like bone, and can be cut into the most delicate shapes, being tough and not something like 100,000 quarts of skimmed milk are used daily for the purpose of making galalith, and the industry is largely on the increase. The article describes the process of making this queer substance.

Didn't Come in Blue.

A woman who wanted soap of a certain make asked for a blue cake. "It doesn't come in blue," said the clerk. "It is made in yellow, white and green."

The woman seemed disappointed, and finally bought another brand of soap in the desired tint.

"That is a queer fact," said the clerk, when she had gone out. "Many women are carrying the color scheme to such extremes nowadays that they use soap that matches the furnishings of the room. In order to meet this demand manufacturers are turning out soaps that almost every known tint. The color they are most deficient in is blue."

The Divine Collapsed.

A certain eminent preacher in a little New England town was asked by one of his flock who was more noted for his wit than his religious tendencies, if he had heard the latest definition of Intemperance and Eternity. He replied that he had not, and received the following definition:

"That intemperance was a wife of the devil, and eternity was a devil of a wife!"

The divine collapsed.

Not the Kind He Wanted.

Professed politicians who have reduced public office to an exact science and the independent voter a sad stumbling block—a fact which is amusingly disclosed by a story found in the recent life of the late George Monro Grant, the eminent Canadian educator and clergyman, says the Youth's Companion.

Toward the end of Sir John Macdonald's life he and Principal Grant, then the head of Queen's college, met at dinner at the house of the premier's brother-in-law, Prof. Williamson.

"How I wish," the premier said to the principal, "that you would be a steady friend of mine."

"My dear Sir John," the principal replied, "I have always supported you when you were right."

The premier's eyes twinkled, and he laid his hand upon the shoulder of the principal.

"My dear man," said he, "I have no use for that species of friendship!"

THE clothes we measure for are made for the man who is to wear them, with all the care for and attention to peculiarities of form and attitude by Ed. V. Price & Co., Merchant Tailors, and when they are done they will only fit the intended wearer.

Clothes ordered from us are not "just as good" as the "storebox" kind—they are immeasurably better in "life," fit and style.

No man who wears ready-to-wear clothing looks right in it. It was not made for him and no matter how well it may apparently fit, it remains that when the suit "settles" and loses its ironed false form, it will cave in here, bag there and wrinkle somewhere else.

We will be glad to show you our extensive line of Fall woollens.

PUSH WINS.

A Victory for Advertising Energy and Reliability.

About four years ago The H. M. Buck Clothing Company was established in the Hinman Building and by persistent energy and tactful use of advertising they soon found the store too small and a year ago they moved into the premises which they now occupy, but even these larger quarters were soon overloaded with stock and for some time they have been on the look out for a store that would enable them to make a proper display of their goods.

By a change in the plans of David Jacobson, by which Mr. Jacobson takes possession of the Spafford & Cole establishment, the opening appeared for which they had been looking and with their usual prompt and shrewd manner of handling business problems they leased the store which Mr. Jacobson will vacate in a few days.

The Buck Clothing House has been one of the pioneers in successful advertising in our city. It has gained an enviable reputation for making good its promises to the public, its name is known not only in Oneida County but throughout the adjoining counties.

The announcement is made in our advertising columns that they will hold a removal sale beginning Saturday morning Sept. 7th until the 28th. Many men with a splendid stock, good location and otherwise great business ability fail to get the attention of the public, because they do not wisely advertise.

Health in the Canal Zone.

The high wages paid make it a mighty temptation to our young workmen to join the force of skilled workmen needed to construct the Panama Canal. Many are restrained however by the fear of fevers and malaria. It is the knowing ones—those who have used Electric Bitters—who go there with out this fear, well knowing that they are safe from malarious influence with Electric Bitters on hand. Cures blood poison too, biliousness, weakness and all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Guaranteed by J. J. Reardon drug-gist 50c.

The Art of Skip-Reading.

Skip-reading is an accomplishment of our own time. An ordinary man or woman of today can extract all the requisite information out of a newspaper in less than five minutes by the exercise of this new sense—for it is little else than this. The eyes race down a column, pick up instinctively an essential word here and there, and the brain fills in the intervals intelligently, producing a precise which is sufficient for the purpose.

PEDDLING A BLACK BEAR.

Maine Sailor Offers One That Can Churn and is House Broken.

Three sailors walked into the office of Director Smith of the Central Park menagerie yesterday and wanted to know what was the market price for black bears, says the New York Sun.

The spokesman introduced himself as Moses Nash, able seaman of the good schooner Mary E. Pennell, which sails from Edison, Me., and is now lying in Whale's Creek, Brooklyn. The A. B. said he had a fine black bear one year and four months old which he would like to sell.

Is it a tame one?" the director asked.

"Tame? Gosh all bemock! He's the tamest and smartest bear in the whole state of Maine. Why, I leave him home to keep warm company, he's that companionable, when I go to sea. And intelligent! Why, marm gets him to churn the butter for her every Monday when she's getting ready to go to Harrington. He just loves to work the machine and he gets a good drink of buttermilk for doing it."

The director asked how he got this very intelligent bear. Nash explained that he had raised it on a bottle from the time it was an hour or so old.

Nash said the bear was as gentle as a house dog and would make a fine pet. He didn't like to part with him, but he needed the money.

Mr. Smith said he had a full supply of bears and couldn't make a dicker, and the Maine sailors went away disappointed.

Car Containing Swedish Minister and Party Stopped and Chauffeur is Arrested Despite Protests—Fyglia Sailor Nearly Drowned.

New York, Aug. 30.—Prince Wilhelm of Sweden and a party of his dinner guests at the Hotel Astor saw everything worth seeing and visited all the attractions of Luna park and Dreamland at Coney Island Wednesday night. The prince declared that he had not had so much fun for a long while. In the prince's party were the Swedish minister and Mme. Lagercrantz, Huntington Wilson, third assistant secretary of state; John B. Jackson, the United States minister to Persia; Commodore Lindorff, commander of the Swedish cruiser Fyglia; Capt. Klercker, A. Ekengren, secretary of the Swedish legation at Washington; Acting Swedish Consul Carlholm and Mr. and Mrs. John Astergren.

The first news that the prince received on arriving Thursday was that John Person, one of the sailors of the Fyglia, had fallen overboard from a landing at the foot of Seventy-seventh street in the Hudson river, but was rescued and taken to a hospital. The prince said he wanted to visit the sailor and it was arranged that he should do so at two p. m. After calling at the hospital the prince planned to visit the points of interest in the financial district.

A somewhat untoward incident happened shortly after the prince's party had returned from Oyster Bay Wednesday. A bicycle policeman halted an automobile containing the Swedish minister, a Swedish naval officer, a secret service detective and a chauffeur, on Broadway, on the ground that the chauffeur was exceeding the speed limit. Notwithstanding the protests of the detective, the chauffeur was arrested by the policeman, which necessitated a trip of Baron Lagercrantz to the station house to explain to the police lieutenant that the chauffeur meant no harm. The prisoner was released out of courtesy to the minister.

FOUR DIE IN AUTO CRASH

MOTOR CAR STRUCK BY TROLLEY NEAR CANANDAIGUA, N. Y.

Dr. George Waldron of Rochester and Three Elderly Women Are Victims of Accident.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Dr. George Waldron, a physician of Rochester; Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth, of Rochester; and Mrs. William Scandling and Mrs. Jane Hobbs, both of Hopewell, were instantly killed Wednesday afternoon in a collision between an automobile in which they were driving and a Rochester & Eastern trolley car, near Canandaigua.

Dr. Waldron went to Hopewell in the morning with his daughter to visit at the home of William Scandling, and had taken the three women, all of whom were more than 55 years of age, for an automobile ride. They were on their way to the Freshour crossing to meet another friend of the Scandling family. Witnesses of the accident say that as the machine approached the trolley tracks it was seen by the motorman. According to them, the motorman made a signal and Dr. Waldron slowed up. Then, apparently thinking that he could cross before the car reached him, he started on again. It is thought that the automobile did not respond readily to the levers. It was caught on the tracks and the occupants thrown with great force. The bodies were frightfully crushed.

BATTLE WITH DESPERADOES WHO ESCAPED FROM PENITENTIARY BELIEVED NEAR.

SAW IRON BARS AND SCALE PRISON WALL

Fugitives Believed to Be in Hiding—Make Rope Out of Sheets and Escape After Flight with Guards—Twenty Detectives in Search.

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 30.—Two desperate and notorious Chicago safe blowers escaped late Wednesday night from the Joliet penitentiary. Edward Quinn and Harry Harmon, serving long sentences, sawed their way to freedom in what the police consider one of the cleverest exploits of the kind ever effected in Illinois. Armed posses of prison guards and deputy sheriffs, headed by Warden Murphy, are scouring the country surrounding Joliet for traces of the criminals, while 40 Chicago detectives are lying in wait at railroad yards in that city or are searching for the desperate pair in their old haunts.

Pursuers Ready for a Battle. Reports that the men had barricaded themselves in an abandoned box car at Brander's bridge, two miles from Joliet, caused a band of determined pursuers, armed with repeating rifles and an abundance of ammunition, to hurry to the scene, and a battle is expected if the desperadoes are brought to bay.

Rumors that Quinn and Harmon had outside aid in their flight to freedom were brought to the attention of Chief McManis of the Joliet police department. The police official thought that friends met the fugitives and supplied them with clothes and arms. The fact that suits of clothing had been stolen at a farmhouse near the Santa Fe railroad tracks led the police to believe that Quinn and Harmon had escaped detection by securing the clothes and wearing them.

Quinn, who is known as one of the cleverest safe blowers in the country, together with Harmon, also prominent in criminal annals, escaped from the penitentiary at midnight by bending back bars which they had previously sawed in the hospital building of the prison, where both men were employed as nurses.

Use a Rope of Sheetings. By means of a rope made of linen bed sheeting and a hook improvised from an iron bar, the men dropped to the grounds of the prison and scaled the high penitentiary wall. Guards were changing at midnight watch and they gained their liberty before the alarm was sounded. Their bold flight was witnessed by George Peary, a watchman for the Joliet street railroad, who hurriedly notified the prison officials of the daring delivery.

Both Acted as Nurses.

Quinn, who was serving a 20-year sentence for safe blowing, had been employed as a day nurse in the three-story hospital for three years. Harmon, who was sent to the penitentiary in June, 1902, was given the position of night nurse. An average of 14 convict patients occupy the hospital, which is guarded day and night.

"Do you believe, Mr. Hill was asked, "that a clear head and a steady hand are guiding the country's policy at present?" "Oh, yes, to be sure," replied the builder of the Great Northern railroad. "But in order to get those who have the power to make investments to regard good securities with more favor it will be necessary to restore confidence. How can that be done? I can't say now. Every man probably has his own opinion of that subject. I don't view the situation with any alarm! I should think prices are at about the lowest. I don't see how they can go much lower."

HOLY JUMPERS

LIVE BY LEAPS AND PRAYERS

New York.—Hidden on a little New Jersey farm, a community of sixty persons, one-half of them children, are trying to vitalize a complete reaction against money greed, hypocrisy, and the present-day Christian church and to keep it alive by religious hysteria.

They depend on "faith" (i. e., prayer) for food, clothing, and the bare necessities of life.

They have followed the injunction of Jesus to sell their goods, give the proceeds to the poor, and follow Him. Medicines and physicians are forbidden, and their only treatment for disease consists of prayer and anointing the body with oil.

Officials of the state of New Jersey say that if any one dies after such treatment those concerned are guilty of criminal negligence and indictable for manslaughter.

The community is managed on the co-operative plan, no one receiving wages for work, and all supplies going into a common fund, the men and women sharing the work on an equal basis.

Converts are kept in a high state of religious excitement by a conglomeration of Biblical text, sophistry, and slang, and talk of modern saluts and miracles.

Seeking to live according to Biblical injunction, they work themselves into a frenzy, march, dance, and leap high in the air, hence their name, Holy Jumpers.

A member of the community has already been taken to the Somerset County Insane Asylum suffering from religious mania.

What the Jumpers Are Like.

Such, in brief, is a summary of the lives of the Holy Jumpers on their farm near Weston, a station on the Reading railway five miles southwest of Bound Brook. Attention was attracted to them by a report that they are to invade New York in the manner of "Elijah" Dowie and his Zionists. What manner of people are they who would flout Broadway with their cries and wild dances? The question led to a visit to Weston.

"Where are the Holy Jumpers?" the reporter asked a farmer he met on the way.

"Right down that on the towpath where you see that barn and windmill," he replied. "Do they jump? Yes, but they do. I was at their prayer meeting last Sunday. One of 'em—brother Harman, they called him—man as big as you, six feet high. Waal, brother Harman yelled 'Hallelujah!' just as loud as he could, gathered up his legs under him, and jumped—it looked as if he jumped most as high as that tall lampost.

"They're praying most all the time, too. Some weeks since one of the fellows here was a-comin' up the towpath and chanced to look over toward the Jumpers' place. Sure as I'm here, that was a Holy Jumper standin' atop their haystack, his hands up in the air, praying for all he was worth. Guess he was praying about the hay.

"These Jumpers seem to be decent enough, though," the farmer added, "only they keep mostly to themselves."

Thus primed, the reporter walked down the Delaware and Raritan canal to the Holy Jumpers' farm to meet one of the most curious experiences to be found near New York.

Reporter Unconvinced.

In went to scoff, he could not stay to pray. The hymns, sophistry, and the blight of 20 little children were too unbecoming; his sense of humor too acute. Yet, as he left, one question was burning in his mind: Are these simple, possibly misguided people

WHERE HE MADE HIS HIT.

Youthful Thespian Put New Business Into Old Part.

Half a dozen actors, just back from "the road," were exchanging experiences around a table in the grill room of the Lamb.

"You were dunned as usual by amateurs?" the musical comedy man asked of a star "in the legitimate."

"Yes, almost every town," the erstwhile Hamlet-Romeo-Claude Melnotte replied. "At one place out west—I won't say what town—a nice young fellow waited at the stage door to tell me he wanted to be a real Shakespearean actor."

"Oh, you had experience?" I asked.

"You, yes; I recited Marc Anthony's speech at the holiday meeting of our lycium, and did one of Daniel Webster's orations last commencement, and played in 'Romeo and Juliet.'"

"I played the Apothecary—made solving the great social question of co-operation by the mere force of their religious zeal, where others have failed, especially in the famous Brook Farm experiment, by an excess of theory and knowledge?

"Zarephath." A big sign at a turn of the road bore the name of the Holy Jumpers' settlement. Lower down, at the entrance to the courtyard, was an arch and "The Pillar of Fire" on it.

A "saint" passed on a bicycle. He wore the uniform of the sect—a black shirt and helmet. The men in the market gardens on either side had the garments of the "workers"—blue shirts and breeches. The "sister" who received the reporter wore a dress of similar material.

In the bare reception room one sound predominated over all others. Outside were sunshine and the song of life—the click of the windmill, locusts, and bees buzzing in a cornfield, the chatter of children, the sound of hammers as the workers raised a big tent for the camp meeting. Inside was the sound of hymns pounded out on a hard-topped piano, persistently, monotonously, endlessly until the visitor thought of the most maddening in the list of ancient tortures—the steady drip of water on a man or woman's head.

"You have been very successful here," began the reporter.

"The Lord's blessing has been upon us." The "sister" answered absently, as if in a dream or listening to the torturing hymns.

Home Is Gift of Believer.

"You own this place?"

"Yes, it was given to us about two years ago by Mrs. Garretson—Mrs. W. P. Garretson. She saw the true light—the light of the Lord in faith—she and her son and her two daughters. We have been here about a year and a half. There are 80 acres of land and 30 grown people, some of them married, but mostly young men and women, and about as many more children. They have given up all their worldly goods and followed Him."

"You must have plenty of money, then?"

"Oh, no," with a smile. "People with worldly goods are not eager to give them up and follow the Lord."

Gradually more facts came out after persistent questioning. Six years ago, Mrs. Alma White, wife of a Methodist preacher in Denver, was inspired to preach on her own account. The conference of the Methodist church would not make her a full fledged minister. But "the Lord blessed her in shining," so she started her own church. She calls it the Pentecostal Union, her neighbors, "The Pillar of Fire"; the public, the Holy Jumpers.

The "sister" who was talking called it "the holiness movement—the Methodist church as it was in the days of Wesley, before people thought only of worldly things and the ministers of preaching and prayer for wage."

Mrs. White is still the head—the Mrs. Eddy, the Mrs. Piper—of the sect. She lives in Denver, where the Holy Jumpers have a Bible school and 150 missionaries and the union got a charter in 1902. Mrs. White's brother, C. W. Bridwell, is the head of the farm at Weston, which is the eastern headquarters of the sect. There are other mission houses in Los Angeles, and Lafayette, Ind., with a dozen missionaries each.

Have Biblical Authority.

"What are the peculiar ceremonies of your sect? You march and dance?"

"Oh, yes," the girl replied. "Are we not told in the Bible how David danced before the Ark of the Covenant, 'yea, and was exceedingly glad'?"

"This took my breath away, for there are not a dozen lines in the part, and they don't amount to anything. So I asked: 'How could you make a hit in the Apothecary?'"

"Well, you see, it was this way," the young fellow replied. "You know the old man is starving to death and hasn't seen the color of a coin for goodness knows how long. When Romeo gives him money the sight of it is such a shock that I made the Apothecary fall in a fit. It was a great hit. The people out in front clapped and clapped till the stage hands came out and dragged me off. Yes—it was such a success I went out and took an encore. I fell in another fit."—N. Y. Times.

How It Is Accomplished in the Old South Sea Way.

The matches had been forgotten, and it looked as if it would be impossible, for lack of fire, to roast the clams on the beach.

"Boys," said the young Malay prince, a Harvard student, "I'll show you now how to make a fire by rubbing two sticks together. It is a hard and wearisome thing to do, but we must cook these clams. Mark Twain says, 'I'll show you that he is wrong. He doesn't know how to go about it, that's the trouble.'"

An oaken log lay on the sand. With the hatchet the prince made a narrow groove in the wood, a canal two feet long. Then he cut off from one end an oaken peg a foot long and the thickened end of his wrist. This he sharpened into the likeness of a huge lead pencil.

"Now," he said.

And kneeling, he began to rub the sharp end of the peg up and down in the groove. He rubbed as hard and as fast as he could. His broad breast heaved with the labor, his handsome brown face dripped with heat.

But at the end of five minutes the groove began to glow a little blue wisps of smoke into the clear air and a moment later a tiny flame flickered and vanished.

An Unexpected Calamity.

"Fox Husband—My dear, you know I promised you a diamond necklace this year—"

Helpful Wife—I know you did, but let it go—the water pipes burst last night.—N. Y. Weekly.

Did not Miriam dance with joy when Israel was delivered from the hands of the Egyptians and the Red sea flowed back and confounded the enemies of the Lord's people? Again, in the New Testament the dance is mentioned as a part of religious worship.

"Yes, and singing—even with cymbals and apsalms," quoted the reporter.

"Yes—yes—we use cymbals, drums, too. And we often sing to the music of banjos and guitars—"

"You have harps, too?"

"We play on autoharps. But most of our music is on the piano. As we sing, we dance as they did in the old days, marching about, and jumping up and down in our gladness. That is why they call us Jumpers."

These were the words of the religiousist, the sentimentalist. On the other hand, strangely bald and strangely compounded of Scriptural phrase and modern sophistry is the official explanation of the jumping habit. Here it is:

Why They Jump.

After they had organized into a church, entirely independent of everything that was backslidden and out on the line God wanted. He began to give light on many important doctrines which we preach and practice to-day. One that had meant more to our people in many ways than anything else, was the holy dance. In the old times, however, there was occasionally a man that would jump up and down when he was "moved by the Spirit," as they said, but for a while church to jump at the same time in unison was something that had never been heard of

In June last, when one of the

In any religious organization. The Lord showed Sister White that He was waiting to revive the holy dance, and that it would be pleasing to Him for the whole church—men and women—everybody that was saved—to go to praising Him in the dance. She had seen a few men jumping around in religious fervor, but not in the sense of the holy dance, as we have it to-day, where all participate in unison.

In the holy dance in our services, the sexes never mingle, men dance alone and together and likewise the women. When they went at it all heaven smiled upon them, and greater things were opened up through it than they had any conception of.

One of the Denver newspapers called us the Jumpers in its headline, and from that time the public has taken it up and is the name by which we are known from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The name is perhaps attached to us in derision, but we cheerfully accept it and go on jumping. Hallelujah!

Are Early at Devotions.

The "Jumpers" get up in the morning at 6 o'clock and pray till breakfast at 9. They pray singly or together, from then till night, in the fields, on the shady banks of the neighboring brook, in the silence of their chambers. They hold services three times Sunday, with more prayers, songs, jumping, and "testimonies."

When a missionary sets out to preach, they gather and pray for him. They say one of these workers left for Patterson penniless, but when they prayed a stranger came up to the traveler and gave him $2. The Jumpers cite numerous cases in which they have "prayed themselves into" shoes, uniforms and food with no trouble at all.

"Last week," to quote Bridwell, "we had no money with which to purchase certain supplies and meet some payments, but the Lord sent us in a sufficient sum, and has been sending us in smaller amounts from day to day."

New York Can Wait.

New York—"the purple woman of Babylon"—will not hear their prayers for the present. They have no immediate plans for coming here as "Elijah" Dowie did. Their missionaries, however, have already preached here as they have in Patterson, Newark, New Brunswick, Somerville, Bound Brook, and Philadelphia.

When a person is ill they pour oil on his or her body and pray—that is all, they say. The body is anointed because people mentioned in the Bible did it. Their idea of "healing" by prayer is made clear by this case reported by Bridwell. He says:

The other day one of our sisters unwittingly swallowed a piece of broken glass, and another piece lodged in her throat. Her condition became quite serious, and we saw at once that God would have to undertake a prayer healing was called, in which a number of persons implored the Lord for her immediate relief. While we were assembled the victory came; our eyes closed, we praised the Lord and claimed deliverance. Suddenly she started to shouting uproariously and, turning over, we saw a piece of glass in her hand that she had dislodged from her throat. She had endeavored a number of times before to get it out without avail. Since then she has been all right, and

"Life of the Little Jumpers."

Scriptural injunction is followed in the kitchen as well as the bare little chapel. Pork is eschewed as unclean; so are "fish without scales." Fruits and cereals form the bases of the favorite dishes.

What of the 30 little children who live in such surroundings? They pray as they play. Their ills are treated, too, with oil poured on their bodies and by prayer. They learn to jump and go to the meetings and give strange "testimonies."

Services for Children.

The children have special services to pray for clothes and the missionaries. They have prayer meetings every morning from 6:30 to 7:30 o'clock. They also have "praise services" distinct from those of their elders. They range in age from babyhood to 10 or 12 years. "In the school term one of the Jumpers explained, 'we also teach them in secular knowledge, including some of the high school branches.'" testified that a miracle was wrought in her behalf.

Conflict With State's Laws.

These methods of treating disease are in direct conflict with the laws of New Jersey. When a person dies in Weston the fact must be reported to Dr. William C. Long of Somerville, county physician of Somerset county, in which the settlement is located. A failure to do so is punishable with a fine of $500. The county physician must investigate the cause of death, and if he finds it was due to neglect, abuse, or violence, he refers the case to one of the coroners of the county.

At the office of the prosecuting attorney of Somerset county it was said that if a person should die without medical attendance and after no other treatment than the pouring of oil and prayer the persons involved could be held for criminal negligence and an indictment for manslaughter would probably follow.

The first death at Zarephath of which County Physician Long has knowledge occurred last February. A man in the community fell from the roof of a barn and was fatally injured. A doctor was hastily summoned from Bound Brook, but could not save his life. The body was buried on the farm—the first in a plot of ground set aside by the Jumpers for their graveyard. No other deaths had been reported from Zarephath, Dr. Long said.

fatal storm plays freak pranks and spreads ruin.

Eau Claire.—A tornado struck the town of Brunswick, killing two persons and destroying $100,000 worth of property, blowing down several houses and windmills. At the farm of C. P. Moses the roof of the house was blown off and the kitchen carried a mile and one-half. One peculiar thing was that a large picture in another farmhouse was carried a long distance and blown into the sitting room of the Moses farm.

The dead are Thomas Hagio, Clear Creek township, and Mary Clemons, Clear Creek township. The young son of C. P. Moses of Brunswick township was seriously injured. Twenty-three barns and sheds, five residences, two schoolhouses and one church were destroyed, two horses were killed, and a great number of hay stacks scattered for miles. Mary Clemons, one of the dead, was nearly killed several years ago in a tornado which swept everything off the Clemons farm, and this time the Clemons farm was again swept clean.

Umpire Stoned at Green Bay.

Crowd Objects to Ruling and Sheriff's Deputies Rush to Rescue.

Green Bay.—Sheriff's officers escorted Umpire Anderson off the field to his hotel to prevent mob violence. The wrath of the crowd was aroused by his decision in calling Safe at second in the eighth inning. Anderson ordered Boyle to the bench for objecting to the decision, and Manager Corrigan refused to have him taken from the game. Anderson then forfeited the game to Madison. The crowd surged upon the field and clubs and stones were hurled at the umpire.

The Wisconsin Fire Engine company, a plant near by, closed its workshop while the 300 employees helped fight the fire.

Umpire Assaulted at Wausau.

Wausau.—Believing the decisions of the umpire favored the visitors, the crowd at the ball park overran the ground and assaulted Umpire Bush. He was being roughly handled when rescued by the police and escorted to his hotel, followed by a howling mob. The game was between the local team and La Crosse, and at the end of the twelfth inning, with the score a tie at three each, the umpire called the game with an hour of daylight remaining. The game was exciting and set the 1,500 spectators on edge.

Near Death in Terrible Storm.

Madison.—After one of the most terrible experiences ever recorded on the Madison lakes, during which they clung to an overturned canoe for several hours in the midst of a wind and thunder storm, Miss Lyla Ransom of Windsor Park and E. The motorman in charge of the train claimed that the man was lying in the center of the track when the train struck him. It is thought that Davis chose this manner of committing suicide.

Pest Threatens Trees.

Appleton.—The San Jose scale, the most ravenous pest known in agriculture, has been discovered in this county. Hundreds of trees have been attacked by the insects. Farmers have appealed to Prof. H. J. Brinkley, of Lawrence university, a noted biologist, who has informed them that unless immediate steps are taken to eradicate them every tree in the county may be ruined.

Kirkville Gets $5,500 Hog.

Janeville.—"Star Masterpiece," a Berkshire hog formerly owned by the Wisconsin state university, was sold at Whitehall, Ill., to residents of Kirkville, Ill., for $5,500. This is the largest price ever paid for a hog.

$2,000,000 Bond Issue.

Eau Claire.—The Chippewa Valley Railway, Light & Power company filed with the register of deeds a mortgage for $2,000,000 to the Harrison Trust and Savings bank, of Chicago. This will enable the company to carry on its large interests and acquire more property.

Young Girl Seeks Death.

MINNESOTA'S BIG STATE FAIR

OPENS SEPT. 2 FOR SIX FULL DAYS—NEW BUILDINGS—ENLARGED GROUNDS

GREAT AIR-SHIP TO MAKE DAILY FLIGHTS

Everybody Going: Including Dan Patch and Sweet Marie Who Go to Break Their Record.

Pres. Cyrus Northrop's opening address on Monday morning, Sept. 2, will usher in another Minnesota State Fair, and this, the 48th of the list, gives royal promise of setting a new record for attendance, exhibits and all around success. And success for the Minnesota State Fair means more than a balance on the right side of the ledger after the fair is over. Perhaps more than any other fair in the country this one has striven to be of practical use to the people, and has accomplished more in this way than many of the older fairs in larger and richer states. Its efforts to improve the character of the livestock popular one for seeing the fair cheaply. For the campers, as well as all the other visitors, the new sewer system on the fair grounds will be a thing of comfort and sanitary safety. It is a complete system, and, with many new public comfort stations and modern plumbing, and a copious supply of pure water, will make personal comfort on the fair grounds certain. For those who may be taken ill in an emergency hospital will be maintained.

There is a complete United States postoffice, fire department and electric alarm service, Red Cross corps, bureau of information, local and long distance telephone service (both companies), eight miles of cement walks, eating places galore, and even a place to check the baby while the tired mother has a little sightseeing.

But while the state fair looks well to the educational side of its work and is alive to the comfort and convenience of its patrons, it does not forget that many people come with the idea of blending amusement with the more practical objects of their visit.

It was the first fair in the country to make racing a success without the accessories of betting and pool-selling. Now many states are following the example of Minnesota and horsemen predict that the greatest racing will in a few years, be held at the state fairs of the country. At the Minnesota fairs the races have been of the highest character. Notable horses will compete for the purses hung up by the management this year, and racing will raised in the northwest have met with striking success, and its work for education in dairying matters, horticulture, agriculture and improved practice in all the details of farm management, has been eminently efficient.

In accord with this policy the practical farm departments of this year's fair will be developed carefully and will be more than ever of practical benefit. Last year the great livestock amphitheater was opened for the first time. This brought to the attention of the breeding world the enterprise of the northwest and such a collection of cattle as was never seen before will be gathered this year at the Minnesota fair as a result. Besides the ordinary classes the American Short Horn Breeders' Association will hold in connection with the state fair a national exhibition of short horns and there will be special premiums for Minnesota raisers of this breed. Auction sales of Shorthorns and Herefords will be features of the week.

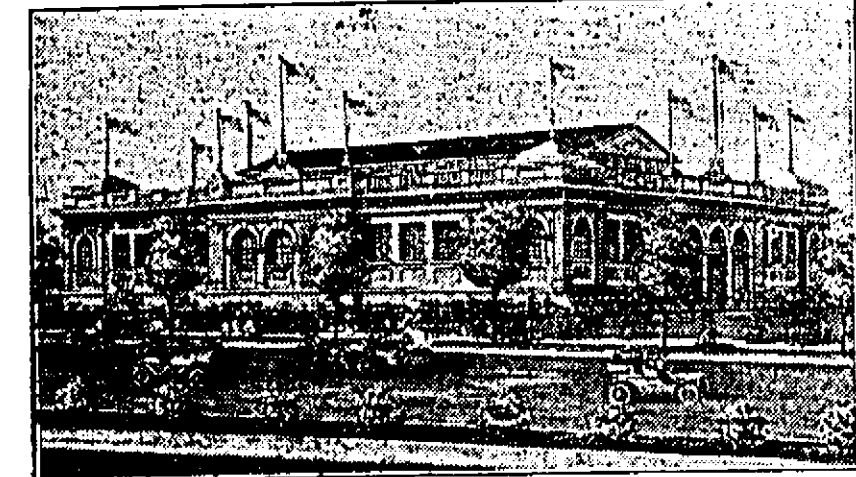

The grandeur and importance of the dairy industry of the state is recognized be seen at its best—the highest types of horse flesh following out their natural bent for speed under perfect conditions.

The Minnesota State Fair track has the world's record for the fastest mile ever made by a harness horse—the mile made by Dan Patch last year in 1:55. Dan will go again on Monday of fair week, trying to again lower this wonderful mark. On Thursday, Sept. 5, Sweet Marie—as great as a trotting mare as Dan is as a pacing stallion—will endeavor to lower her world's record of 2:02 without a pace maker. Other great horses will be in the races spurred by the large purses and the reputation of the track as a fast one.

At last a practical airship has been constructed and the state fair management has secured it for flights three times each day during fair week. It will be an exhibition between times, and when it flies it will circle the grand stand and occasionally visit the adjacent cities. This will be the first opportunity of the Northwestern public alized this year in the erection on the fair grounds of a fine new dairy hall, the largest building for the exhibition of dairy products in the world.

Another world beater is the new poultry building—183 by 147 feet—costing $25,000, and being the largest of its class. At last the dairy and poultry departments of the fair are well housed. The honey department is housed in the new dairy hall, and increased space is thus secured for agriculture and horticulture in the agricultural building. And it was needed. As many as fourteen counties have applied for space for county exhibits; farm exhibits will be numerous and the fruit will make a very fine show.

Since the last fair the agricultural society has purchased forty acres of additional land northeast of the old grounds, and into this much needed extension the agricultural implement division of the fair will push this year. On the new forty acres there will also be a camping ground in a beautiful grove. Tents may be had at nominal cost and the plan seems a very

HARDLY A SUCCESS

Seemingly He Had Not Sufficient Expertness, and in His Wrath He Exclaimed Almost as David in His Haste.

All was peace in the Birdsell flat. The last of the five children had been put to bed, the last request for a drink of water had been silenced, and Mrs. Birdsell had come into the sitting room to sink down into a chair with a little tired sigh to take up the darning of the children's stockings. And now naught was heard save the crackle of Mr. Birdsell's paper as he adjusted his feet into a more comfortable position on the seat of another chair. Suddenly he took his foot down, shoved his spectacles up further on his nose, and cleared his throat.

"Ann, did you ever eat any whirled eggs?" he queried.

"Whirled eggs?" repeated Mrs. Birdsell. "No, I never did."

"Listen here, then," said Mr. Birdsell. He cleared his throat again and began to read:

"There is a Turkish restaurant in New York where one may eat pilaffs, sherbets, and saffron-colored roast steaks, but the oddest dish the menu boasts is 'whirled eggs.' The impressive dish is prepared before the guest. When it is ordered a cook enters the dining room with a kind of sling in his hand—a little pot attached to the end of a leather cord. The man opens the eggs, seasons them, and shuts them up in the little pot. Then he whirles the pot at the end of its cord around his head at inconceivable speed. Round and round it spins. Its outlines become vague. It seems to smoke a little.

"Suddenly the man opens it and sets the eggs before the guest. They are beautifully scrambled and quite hot. The heat of their motion through the air is what has cooked them."

"Thus," exclaims the Turkish host, "the eastern shepherds cook their eggs, whirling them in a sling like that wherewith David overcame the giant of Gath."

The next night Mr. Birdsell appeared at his home with a bundle under his arm.

"Honey, what are you fixing to do?" exclaimed Mrs. Birdsell.

"Do?" repeated Mr. Birdsell. "I'm going to whirled some eggs, that's what I'm going to do. No more of your fried eggs, and your poached eggs, and your boiled eggs for me. I'm going to have 'em whirled."

Mrs. Birdsell knew better than to interpose any objections, and went quietly on with her preparations for dinner while Mr. Birdsell was unwrapping his package.

In a few minutes he entered the dining room, swinging in his hand a pair of thongs, from which was suspended a small closed pot which bore some resemblance both to a censer and a sling.

"Gimme some eggs now," he ordered, as he broke into cheerful whistles. Mrs. Birdsell brought three eggs and Mr. Birdsell looked almost gay as he broke them into the small pot.

"I wasn't any slouch with a sling in my boyhood days," he observed cheerfully as he gathered up the thongs in his hand, "and I have an idea that I can show a thing or two about whirling to Turks or any other dagoes. Here—move this table out of my way and gimme plenty of room. Keep the children back there, and don't come huddle the door yourself while I am whirling. It may take me a moment or two to get the right swing again."

Mr. Birdsell fitted the cover on the top of the pot, grasped the thongs, and slowly began to whirl the apparatus. Gradually he lifted his hand and put more power into his wrist till he had attained considerable speed. Round and round sped the pot, the thongs giving out a low, humming sound, which gradually became higher and higher as the speed increased. Mr. Birdsell struck manfully at his task till the revolving pot became a circular blur above his head and the drops of perspiration trickled down his forehead.

Suddenly there was a loud pop. Mrs. Birdsell entered the room shrieking. The top of the pot crashed through the dining room window. The body of the pot veered around and landed, with a resounding whack on the back of Mr. Birdsell's neck. One of the thongs had evidently broken.

Mr. Birdsell dropped his apparatus and stared in dazed fashion at his wife, who was removing a sticky, yellow mass from her face with her apron. On a level with his head, the four walls of the room were decorated with a broad, spattered yellow band, from which little yellow drops were slowly trickling down the discolored wallpaper. The back of Mr. Birdsell's neck was streaming raw yellow egg and raw egg was splattered freely over the carpeted floor.

Mr. Birdsell stood speechless and agast for a moment, and seemed unable to find words. His wife gazed at him with frightened eyes. Then Mr. Birdsell's countenance became suffused with rage.

"Ann," he howled, "the fellow who wrote that yarn was an infernal liar!"
